

AmerikaHaus NRW, the Friedrich Naumann Foundation for Freedom, the French Embassy Germany: Higher Education Department, and the University of Bonn's Center for Advanced Security, Strategic and Integration Studies (CASSIS) cordially invite you to a joint discussion on

TRANSATLANTIC SECURITY: A NEW HOPE?

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 23
6.30 PM (CET)
VIA ZOOM

HANS H. STEIN

Director, Representation of the State of North Rhine-Westphalia to the European Union, Brussels

LTG (RET.) BEN HODGES

Pershing Chair in Strategic Studies, Center for European Policy Analysis (CEPA)

DR. BRUNO TERTRAIS

Deputy Director,
Fondation pour la Recherche Stratégique, Paris

MODERATED BY

SUMI SOMASKANDA

Journalist,
Senior News Anchor for DW News (Deutsche Welle)

According to EU Commission President Dr. Ursula von der Leyen, Europe now has “a friend in the White House”. While many Europeans will share this sentiment, existing transatlantic security issues remain yet to be solved: on questions of NATO burden sharing (the infamous “2 %”), energy security (Nord Stream II), cyber security (Huawei), and possible troop movements within Europe, US President Joe Biden will without a doubt change the rhetoric, but not necessarily the entire substance of the conversation. In parallel, French advances at European strategic autonomy grow stronger beyond its national borders and may offer an alternative to the crumbling post-World War II order.

Against this background, an international round of transatlantic experts will discuss past, current, and future challenges - and opportunities - for transatlantic security.

Please register here:

https://us02web.zoom.us/webinar/register/WN_5PtuhqoFRxmxARBmtHjIIA

FRIEDRICH NAUMANN
STIFTUNG Für die Freiheit.

